Mr. Skinner special agent has been here some time and has interested several of our leading business men to the extent of about 300 shares. The company has good backing and Mr. Knight believes that a strong local branch would be of benefit to our city, as he will guarantee to make loans to those who desire them on the Building & Loan plan. The Continental is backed by the Cal. Title Ins. & Trust Co., and there ought to be a good local branch here as California towns have been built up by associations of this kind.

Judge Wallace has bound two of the principles in the San Francisco election frauds over in the sum of $10,000.

The Enterprise thinks that the present drop in prices is unjustifiable. It is also pretty tough on people who had stocks.

Ed Raymond, arrested for stealing a watch and chain from a resident of Lake View, appeared before Judge Hawthorne yesterday and was bound over to appear before the Grand Jury. Not being able to produce bond money, he was placed in the calaboose.

George L. Davis of Carson, who died recently left $300,000 in negotiable securities. One wonders how a Carson merchant could do so well in a small town in a State that people claim has been so long on the down grade.—Pioneer Republican.

Mr. Davis was for many years a sturdy advertiser in the newspapers.

Track laying on the Southern Pacific lower coast line has been temporarily stopped, the workmen having reached Verde Creek, by E. W. Steele's dairy, where an iron bridge must of necessity be erected before they can continue. Tracklaying will recommence as soon as the bridge is up. It will not be long before the slope, on the Santa Maria is reached.

It is said that Frank Siddall, the great soap manufacturer of Philadelphia, never used fence painting or greenbars for advertising, but stuck to the newspaper; yet became a millionaire. How strange!—Progress. There is nothing strange about this when you remember that Mr. Siddall was the gentleman who said that "People who never read newspapers don't use soap."

The Storm.

Winter came on with rather a rush yesterday and opened the exercises with a good old fashion snow storm. It came with a strong wind from the West and it was the Nevada section of the storm that swept over California as a rain visitation. In the morning it cleared up for a while, but the clouds rolled over the mountains again and the storm settled down steadily to its work and by 3 o'clock there was good sleighing all over Nevada.

The ranchers and lumber men express satisfaction at the downfall and hope there will be more of it.

W. D. TORREYSON.

AN OLD AND RESPECTED CITIZEN
DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS.

Yesterday morning at 2 o'clock W. D. Torreyson one of the oldest citizens of Carson passed away after an illness of several weeks.

Probably no man in Ormsby county was better known than the deceased.

He came here when Carson was in its infancy and known to many of the old settlers as "The Learned Blacksmith." He was a man of education, very well read and possessed more than the ordinary knowledge of politics and public affairs.

His strong characteristics were his rugged honesty and frankness of speech. He never minced words with anyone or beat about the bush or fiddled anybody. He had fixed opinions on every question and was a man who always had the courage of his convictions. He never considered anything from a standpoint of policy. It was merely a question of right or wrong with him and beyond that he cared nothing.

He came to the coast in early days and being an iron worker and carriage maker of great skill, hammered out a fortune at the forge and then lost it with the change in the times.

Up to about a year ago he had enjoyed rugged health and although well advanced in years he kept at his work unceasingly. He was a man of brains and liberal ideas and idolized by his family. He leaves a wife, a son, James Torreyson, who is at present Attorney General of the State, and four daughters, Mrs. Whistler of Los Angeles, Belle, Ada and Jennie who are living in this city. The Appeal extends to the members of the family the condolence of the community for their loss.

He was 72 years of age and a native of Virginia. He will be buried today under the auspices of the Odd Fellows Lodge of this city.

The V. & T. Assessment Question.

Editor Journal:—Let me ask you if you saw the Gazette of yesterday, and if you did did you notice that it devoted its leading editorial to the defense of Assessor Fletcher? I don't know of what kind of stuff Assessor Fletcher is made but am ready to submit that if the sleepwalker, full of stuff published by the Gazette about that V. & T. assessment is a vindication of Mr. Fletcher and is satisfactory to the Assessor there is a different combination from what I thought.

My communications asked for reasons for making the assessment of the V. & T. Railroad $70,375 less than last year. In an attempt to screen the Assessor the Gazette establishes a strong presumption that our County Assessor is guilty of a wrongful act in addition to being a fool and a peevish.

So far as my queries went I assumed that a damnable dirty piece of official business had been transacted. Now the swift witness—the Gazette, nearly breaks its neck to testify to its "belief" in the honesty of Mr. Fletcher, but I submit that its defense is a practical confession of moral guilt than was ever charged by anyone, so far at least as I know.

Then after getting poor Fletcher into limbo it concludes that the County Commissioners are as much to blame as the Assessor.

This is not all, however. Not the main part of the Gazette's defense is that Old Beck himself is to blame, for if he had kept away on this model Assessor and the Board of Equalization it would not have happened!

So the position of the Gazette is summed up thusly:

First—Assessor Fletcher did not do it.

Second—Nobody did it.

Third—it was those ungodly Assessor of Ormsby, Lyon and Storey counties that caused poor Assessor Fletcher to fall down.

Fourth—The Board of Equalization was as much to blame as Fletcher.

Fifth—Old Beck is to blame anyway. Yes verily. H. H. Beck, Dec. 5th 1894.

The evidence against the "stuffers" in San Francisco is so conclusive that a number of them are pretty certain to crack rock in San Quentin.

NEVADA IRON ORE.

IT IS SOUGHT AFTER IN SAN FRANCISCO BY THE MANUFACTURER OF FINE STEEL.

P. K. Reid of Lovelock is again making shipments of iron ore to San Francisco parties. We learn that the ore from his mines is entirely free from deleterious substances, such as sulphur and phosphorus, and is sought after by San Francisco men in the manufacture of steel. However, the high cost of transportation to the railroad, some sixteen miles by team, precludes the use of the ore except very sparingly.

The building of a railroad to these mines would undoubtedly open up one of the greatest enterprises in the State or on the Pacific slope. For with cheap transportation to the railroad and the erection of furnaces in San Francisco for the reduction, and there being so rich, containing 65 per cent pure iron, there would open up avenues for the disbursement of the product not only on this coast, but Japan, China, the Central American States and west South American countries could be supplied with a superior quality of iron at a cheaper cost to them than could be obtained elsewhere. The consumption of pig iron on this coast alone would justify the building of such a road and the erection of furnaces of large capacity in San Francisco.

This would be an industry of lasting benefit to this State and coast, as the quantity of ore in this mine is inestimable, hundreds of thousands, even millions of tons, covering the surface of the ground for acres and acres. Shipments of large quantities of this ore were made some two years ago to the Pacific Rolling Mill which gave the best of satisfaction, but owing to the depression of trade, there being no consumption of ore for the past year, iron as well as other commodities dropped in price so low that with the high cost of team haul from the mines the ore would not justify shipment. However, since confidence is again being restored, the owners of the mines are again enabled to commence shipment of the ore. It is to be hoped that the shipments may continue, as it undoubtedly would afford employment to a number of people.—Silver State.

A Mystery.

Engine No. 1744 came through light from Wadsworth, last evening about 7:30. After stopping to take water at the tank below town, she rushed through western, inquiry as to the mysterious movements of the monster elicited the fact that there was someone who had hired the engine at Wadsworth to get him out of the State as quickly as possible, and officers were notified to make arrests, but the notification came too late and it is likely the individual made the 80 mile haul without interruption.

It seemed impossible to learn the name of the person or what crime he was wanted for, and the engine men reported to headquarters that they had left the man here. The officers were unable to find him about town and it was concluded that he was someone who was jumping the country and the boys assisted him to get away.—Journal.
